NORWICH, CONN.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich residents were startled fifty years ago by a series of burglaries and assaults and also several attempts at arson. One young lady was assaulted and her hair was cut from her head and her mouth filled with ashes. Who was responsible for these crimes was a mystery to local authorities.

Considerable discussion regarding the proposed new court house occupied much space in the columns of the Bulletin. Extracts from the Bulletin's files of 70 follow:

January 31, 1870—The community was much pained and shocked to hear of the sudden death on Saturday, of Lathrop H. Maples. It seems that Mr. Maples was his work near his house building a stone wall, when a derick which the men were using, fell striking Mr. Maples on the head crushing his skull. One of the guys ropes on the derick had become loosened causing the derick to fall.

On Friday night there was another demonstration at the residence of the Hon. James A. Bill. The household was alarmed by a cry from Miss Will who thought she saw a man's face peering into her window. There were watchmen in the house, who at once rushed out but discovered nothing. In the morning, however, footprints were found about the house and were traced for considerable distance.

Over 150 pistols were sold in town last week owing to the epidemic of burglaries and assaults which has struck the town within the past few days.

February 1, 1870—They had another sensation on Saturday night at the residence of C. H. Davis on Laurel Hill. Some time during the night, Mr. Davis was startled by a piercing cry from the servant girl who has figured so prominently in the former attacks, and upon rushing to her room found her with her back hair cut off and her mouth full of ashes. Ashes had also been rubbed over her head and scattered on the floor. After this astounding discovery Mr. Davis made the rounds of the house and found nothing disturbed, the doors being all bolted and the windows nailed down as they had been the evening previous. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Davis discovered that a fire had been kindled in the lot of his barn, which either gone out or had been extinguished, leaving a blackened spot as large as a bushel basket.

About 10 o'clock last evening the household of Andrew Lotter in Preston was aroused by the breaking in of a window. Mr. Lotter seized a rifle and proceeded to investigate. The marauders took the alarm and fled before Mr. Lotter could get a shot at them.

TRADE SCHOOL TRAINING FOR RAILROAD MEN OF STATE

Federal, state and railroad facilities and agencies are soon to be employed co-operatively in Connecticut to further vocational training to employees of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad under plans being formulated by the United States railroad commission, the state board of education and the Connecticut state director of vocational education.

More than 2,000 employees of the railroad are expected to benefit by this scheme, which is novel to this section of the country.

State trade schools at Stamford, Bridgeport, Danbury, Meriden and South Manchester, or in Torrington and Putnam, and the Boardman trade school in New Haven, may be used, if these schools are able to render service on a plan of part-time instruction to the railroad men; and school quarters may be established in connection with the railroad shops at East Hartford.

Student employees would attend the schools most conveniently located with respect to their residence or place of employment. Much of the work would be in the nature of trade extension work in the railroad company's shops. The training would be obligatory for the employees selected by the company to take it. The attendance probably would range in age from 16 to 20 years.

Should the state trade schools be used, as the plans provide, there would be needed more teachers in each school. For the pay of these teachers, the state would have the use of funds appropriated by the federal government under the Smith-Hughes act for vocational education.

The railroad plans to employ an educational supervisor to travel over the New York, New Haven and Hartford system and give his whole time to the supervision of work in the various schools and shops used as training centers.

Machine work would be correlated with practical work on the railroad lines, under the plan as now formulated and the training would include instruction in shop mathematics, mechanical drawing, coach painting, English, reading and spelling also.

Frederick J. Trinder, state director of vocational education, sent to Superintendent of Motive Power H. C. Oviatt of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, at New Haven, Monday, the following letter relative to the acceptance by the state board of education of the scheme for vocational training of the railroad's employees.

Under the provisions of section 527 of the general statutes and the basis of approval of the state board of education, we agree to accept an assignment of apprentices and others from the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. Co., as part-time students in the state trade schools at Stamford, Bridgeport, Danbury, Torrington and Putnam, if these schools are able to render service on this plan of part-time instruction to employees.

If arrangements can be made with the Boardman trade school at New Haven for the accommodation of apprentices and other employees of the company to receive part-time instruction, the state will pay to the Boardman trade school on a student hour basis as now arranged for these employees.

Heads of departments whenever convenient should visit the school and give a short lecture or as we term it a "shop talk" to the students explaining the opportunity the company is giving them and what the company expects the student will do to make best use of such opportunity and also talk on practical methods of shop work and organization.

I believe it is the purpose of the company to have a supervisor appointed who will have direct supervision over all apprentices in the system and this department will be glad to co-operate in every way possible to facilitate the work and supervision of such department head.

In order to plan and organize the most adaptable line of instruction for the railroad service, it would seem desirable to have a committee meeting to get into detail with the outline of the subjects to be taught and upon notification from the superintendent of motive power's office of a date when the committee may meet to be held either the writer or directors of schools selected to attend this meeting will respond and give such time as is necessary for the formulation of courses.

Materials and supplies of lesson sheets are furnished free to the students but they are required to purchase a simple set of drawing instruments and two angles. These are sold at cost or the student may purchase them outside or perhaps they can be

February 2, 1870—Last evening a barn belonging to Nathan B. Lewis near the water mill was discovered to be on fire. It appeared to have been set at the western end through an aperture. That end of the barn was consumed together with some tons of hay. By vigorous work with buckets on the part of the neighbors the flames were extinguished.

The servant girl who has figured so prominently in the Laurel Hill burglar excitement departed for New York last evening. Now let us have peace.

February 2, 1870—A meeting of the stockholders of the Eastern Slove company was held at their office in this city yesterday. A dividend of 10 per cent. was declared and the following officers were elected: Apollis Richmond, president; John F. Slater, Henry B. Norton, John Mitchell and Augustus Brewster were elected directors.

Company C, 3rd Regiment C. N. G. was the only city company attending the funeral of General Mower at New London yesterday. They went down on the special train that left this city about 11 o'clock bearing the City Guard from Hartford.

At the meeting of the fall term of Union college, Charles A. Aiken, brother of Gen. Aiken of this city, was inaugurated president of that institution.

February 4, 1870—The county commissioners held a meeting in this city yesterday and voted to call the county legislature together on Wednesday, the 18th, to decide whether the county will unite with the town or city, or with either of them in the creation of a new court house.

The senate in executive session yesterday confirmed the nomination of Calvin Goddard, clerk of the court, to the United States district attorney for Connecticut vice Hiram Willey of New London.

The enumeration of children in the central school district has been completed and the total is 1,426, a gain from last year of forty-five.

February 5, 1870—At the present caucus on Friday evening the following were chosen delegates to the several nominating conventions: State—James A. Buckingham, H. H. Starr, Henry B. Norton, William R. Potter, Senatorial—Jeremiah Halsey, Joseph Selden, Charles M. Colt, E. B. Partridge, Federal—John T. Wait, Amos W. Prentice, Edwin Fay and Charles D. Browning.

At the local postoffice there are at the present date about 130 unclaimed letters some persons having two or three letters addressed to them.

STATE HUMANE SOCIETY ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Connecticut Humane society this week all officers were re-elected, including the secretary, J. J. who has been acting as secretary for the last two months, having succeeded Miss Mary E. Lally, who resigned in January. The state board of education was continued as secretary. Officers elected and committees chosen as follows:

President, Dr. George C. F. Williams; vice presidents, Rev. Dr. Francis Goodwin, Atwood Collins, Charles Hopkins Clark; honorary vice presidents, Rev. Dr. William Southington; ex-Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin, New Haven; Rev. Dr. Newman Smyth, New Haven; Prof. William Walker, New Haven; Mr. W. B. Keach, New Haven; Charles H. Owen, Hartford; Mrs. T. H. regular students, but should the Boardman school be unable to accommodate such employees the state will accept quarters provided by the company with light, heat or power furnished, free to the state, the state to furnish the instructors necessary and to pay the salaries of same.

The arrangement of time that each apprentice or employee will spend in the trade school must not be less than four hours each week. It would be better if it was not less than eight hours each week, and studies so arranged as to be a means of giving individual instruction to students rather than following class methods.

Should the company decide to have part-time students in pairs, alternating between the shop and the school, such plan can be easily arranged. This can either be week about or month about.

We would request the company to furnish blueprints and other data from the company regarding each trade.

We should also have a statement from the company regarding each student enumerating his duties in the capabilities of the various shops, what the department expects to train the young man for.

Each school will furnish a report to the head of the department and the superintendent of motive power each month explaining in detail the accomplishments of each student, department, attendance, and if possible, will be granted for the instructors to visit the various departments to observe the work the student is doing in the company's shops, we will be glad to report on this also.

Heads of departments whenever convenient should visit the school and give a short lecture or as we term it a "shop talk" to the students explaining the opportunity the company is giving them and what the company expects the student will do to make best use of such opportunity and also talk on practical methods of shop work and organization.

BIGGEST USE OF TELEPHONES IN STATE THIS YEAR

With a net gain of $398 telephones during the year just closed, making 139,823 the total number of telephones in use in Connecticut on December 31, 1919. The Southern New England Telephone Company's expanding service reflects a highly creditable business development throughout the year. This is the largest net advance in a twelve-month period that the company has had in several years and present indications are that a continuation of this splendid expansion of its business.

The number of telephones gained and lost in each exchange in the exchange of the New London District follows:

Exchange	Total No.	Gain
Clinton	231	1
Colchester	183	12
Danlison	859	159
Deep River	275	5
Jewett City	287	7
Lebanon	294	4
Lyons	254	4
Moosup	429	13
Myrtle	1239	6
New London	5972	11
Norwich	3750	54
Putnam	1502	7
Saybrook	479	13
Stamford	409	9
Willimantic	2547	36

Total 19061 165

It must not be assumed, however, that every new contract for a telephone is a gain of one telephone. The fact is that more than three times as many telephones are disconnected as there is a net gain of one. For every three new subscribers, two old ones cancel their contracts and their service is discontinued.

In addition there are a great number of telephone movements, which are of great value to the company as they are a means of increasing the number of telephones have not been installed as rapidly as subscribers would desire. The Bridgeport lodge will be the new business. The company is, however, preparing to meet a continuation of its business and promptly in the service asked for by its patrons.

NEW MASONIC CHARTERS IN HARTFORD AND BRIDGEPORT

Requests for charters for new Masonic lodges in Hartford and Bridgeport were granted by the grand lodge in annual session at Hartford this week. The Hartford lodge will be the new business. The company is, however, preparing to meet a continuation of its business and promptly in the service asked for by its patrons.

The new officers were installed by Past Grand Master John O. Rowland of Wallingford.

Retiring Grand Master Wallace S. Moyle was given a past grand master's apron and jewel.

"Zouave" From Algiers. "Zouave" is the French name taken from that of a tribe in Algiers and this kind of light infantry was first employed in that country in 1831, the members being Algerians and dressing in semi-Moorish uniforms. Other countries, including the United States, have adopted the Zouave system since. In the Civil war, and the Italian assault upon Rome in 1870, they were conspicuous. In the latter case defending the papal supremacy.

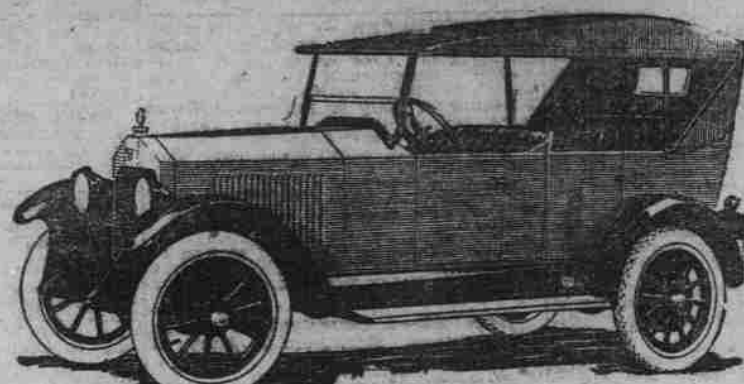

Times Have Changed. It is said that the post office in Philadelphia will lose $15,000 a day as the result of going from the three-cent back to the two-cent rate for letters.

That happens to be exactly the sum which Benjamin Franklin was able to turn over to Great Britain in annual revenues from the post offices in the colonies in 1774, after he had put in four years of hard work in creating a postal system.

Insures Her Hands For $100,000

Vera Fokine, the famous Russian dancer, now exhibiting her art in "Aphrodite," made this unique insurance deal. She wanted to insure her hands and feet for the same amount, but the company objected to this high sum. She therefore had to choose between her hands and feet. She chose her hands with this explanation: In case of accident to my feet, I shall still be able to exhibit the art of dancing with my hands—but I could not dance without my hands.
